Ho Chi Minh City, 1 November 2026

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to apply for the Data Analyst position. I am a final-year Management Information Systems student at the University of Transport Ho Chi Minh City (GPA 3.64/4.0), and I am currently an intern at Saigon International General Hospital, where much of my work is data analysis and reporting.

At the hospital, I broke net revenue down into six drivers and measured how much each one changed, down to specialty and doctor level, which moved the discussion from patient volume to order rates. I also built the first dashboard for corporate health check contracts from scratch, with clear KPIs and data-quality checks, so the CEO and the FP&A team can see where each contract and payment is waiting. In my university projects, I built Power BI models with DAX and learned to check my own numbers carefully: re-running one project revealed a data leak that made a model look perfect.

I know that I still have a lot to learn, and that is exactly why I am applying. I hope to learn from experienced analysts, work with real data and real business questions, and grow step by step. I learn quickly, I am happy to start with small tasks, and I always try to finish what I start with care.

If I am given the chance, I will do my very best to contribute to the team and to improve every day. My case studies are available at dohoangphuc.vercel.app. Thank you sincerely for your time and consideration. I would be grateful for the opportunity to talk with you.

Sincerely,

Do Hoang Phuc
